

DFW Industrial & Commercial Real Estate Morning Brief

Date: July 2, 2026 (Thursday) | Coverage Window: July 1, 2026, 7:00 AM CT to July 2, 2026, 8:00 AM CT (carried items dated back to June 15 where flagged) | Prepared by the Research Desk

DFW Market Read: DFW industrial keeps outrunning the national market on record Q1 leasing and the cleanest credit profile in the CMBS stack, while Uptown Dallas office pulls in a $1.3B anchor commitment and fresh spec capital in the same week a legacy trophy owner tests a sale.

- NEW 566 N Beach St; Alliance Gateway 34; Alliance Westport 16 plus two spec buildings; Celestica equipment-manufacturing campus; Black Mountain Power site; 5051 South Freeway; and 5 more
- UPDATE Telecom Parkway campus; Three-property IOS portfolio; DataBank campus (DFW9 to DFW11); Camp Howze Industrial Rail Park
- CLOSED Official June nonfarm payrolls report, released this morning after compilation.

Industrial	Positive	Record Q1 2026 leasing (21.0M SF), absorption ahead of deliveries, and industrial CMBS delinquency at 1.20%, the cleanest of any property type [10][11][13][40].
Investment Sales	Positive	MSCI Q1 2026 volume up 18% y/y with industrial leading sector growth at 27% y/y; Zenith and CanTex remain active, plus an unconfirmed Ares deal-sheet headline [15][16][17][44].
Multifamily	Negative	Blackstone reportedly facing foreclosure on a $90M North Dallas loan; June's Texas foreclosure-flagged total hit a tracking-period record, concentrated in multifamily and hospitality [31][32].
Office	Neutral	Uptown is bifurcating: fresh capital funding a $1.3B Morgan Stanley commitment and a new Stonelake spec tower while Hillwood Urban tests a sale of an existing trophy asset [7][28][30].
Retail	Neutral	No material retail transactions or leases surfaced in the coverage window.
Land / Development	Positive	Hillwood's AllianceTexas pipeline has grown to roughly 8.2M SF under construction or design, and a pending 310,036 SF incentive deal is in front of Fort Worth council [19][21][22].
Debt / Capital Markets	Neutral	Treasuries are range-bound in a tight band and the Fed is on hold, but a new Fed Chair and a softer ADP print add two-sided risk into the July 28 to 29 FOMC [34][35][36][38].

Analyst judgment based on available signals, not a factual statistic.

SECTION 1 — TODAY'S THREE THINGS THAT MATTER

1. Celestica commits $300M and 343,000 SF to Richardson, growing its Telecom Corridor campus to roughly 1M SF 5/5

Verified facts. Celestica renewed its lease on its existing two-building advanced-manufacturing campus on Telecom Parkway in Richardson and signed for a new 343,000 SF building, bringing its total campus footprint to approximately 1 million square feet through 2036. The company plans to invest roughly $300M in tenant improvements and equipment over two years and expects to add approximately 2,300 permanent jobs; the City of Richardson approved a $3M tenant-improvement grant. Reported June 17 to 18, 2026 [1][2][3].

Why it matters. The largest confirmed DFW manufacturing-campus commitment of the week, reinforcing Richardson's Telecom Corridor as a target for advanced-manufacturing and data-center-supply-chain tenants that need large contiguous blocks with heavy power capacity.

Investment sales implication. ANALYST INFERENCE Expect increased owner and developer interest in large-block, power-heavy manufacturing product along the Telecom Corridor; this is a strong comp for other North Dallas municipalities structuring incentive packages to compete for similar advanced-manufacturing users.

2. DataBank closes $1.45B in financing for its Oracle-anchored Red Oak data center campus 4/5

DATABANK RED OAK CAMPUS, CAPITAL STACK TO DATE
Corporate revolving credit facility	$800M, matures 2031
Construction financing upsize	$650M (June 15, 2026)
Prior MUFG-led construction loan	$2.0B (April 21, 2026), DFW9 to DFW11
First three buildings	600,000 SF; 180 MW; anchored by Oracle
Full campus plan	8 buildings; up to 480 MW; 292 to 300 acres

No real attributed image was available; presented as a styled data table per the visuals sourcing waterfall (Level 3). Sources: DataBank press releases, June 15 and April 21, 2026 [5][6].

Verified facts. DataBank closed more than $1.45B in new financing, an $800M revolving credit facility plus a $650M upsize of construction financing, for its 292 to 300-acre campus in Red Oak, roughly 20 miles south of Dallas. This builds on an earlier $2.0B MUFG-led construction loan (announced April 21, 2026) for the campus's first three buildings, DFW9 through DFW11, totaling 600,000 SF and 180 MW, anchored by Oracle. The full campus is planned for eight buildings and up to 480 MW of IT load. Financing close reported June 15, 2026 [4][5][6].

Why it matters. Capital at this scale for a single South Dallas County campus confirms institutional lenders remain willing to underwrite hyperscale power-heavy projects even as broader CRE lending stays cautious, and it puts Red Oak alongside AllianceTexas as a DFW power and land corridor.

Investment sales implication. ANALYST INFERENCE Expect land brokers and owners in southern Dallas County to market power-adjacent parcels against this comp, and increased diligence interest from other data-center operators evaluating ERCOT interconnection queue position near Red Oak.

3. Dallas Council approves $18.5M incentive package for Morgan Stanley's proposed $1.3B Uptown tower

5/5

Verified facts. Dallas City Council voted to approve an $18.5M incentive package tied to Morgan Stanley's proposed 708,000 to 709,000 SF office tower at 2401 McKinney Ave in Uptown, developed by Trammell Crow Co. Total project value is cited at $1.3B, with Morgan Stanley weighing roughly $684M to $700M of that against a competing site in Alpharetta, GA. Reporting describes a planned 16-year lease from 2031, growing from approximately 1,500 employees to as many as 4,800 by 2039, with construction slated to start fall 2026. Council vote reported June 24, 2026 [7][8][9].

Why it matters. The single largest corporate-commitment story of the week for DFW CRE at large and the clearest signal that Uptown remains competitive for major financial-services HQ decisions against Sun Belt alternatives. Per the Top Three balance rule, this is the one non-industrial story large enough to hold the third slot.

Investment sales implication. ANALYST INFERENCE A confirmed incentive-per-job structure at this scale becomes the reference point for future Uptown or Dallas CBD incentive negotiations; expect increased developer interest in adjacent McKinney Avenue sites regardless of Morgan Stanley's final decision.

■ SECTION 2 — INDUSTRIAL & LOGISTICS DESK

FUNDAMENTALS

DFW industrial vacancy stood at roughly 8.8% to 9.2% in Q1 2026 (figures vary by brokerage methodology), down 40 to 60 basis points quarter-over-quarter and year-over-year, on record Q1 leasing of 21.0M SF and net absorption of roughly 9.4M to 10.4M SF against 5.7M SF delivered. Approximately 33.4M SF remained under construction (40.9% pre-leased) against a base of roughly 1.12 billion SF, with average NNN asking rent in the $9.56 to $10.24/SF range [10][11][12][13]. No Q2 2026 quarterly report had been published by any major brokerage as of this morning; any Q2-dated figure in circulation should be treated as unconfirmed until brokerages report [10].

ANALYST INFERENCE The spread between tight small-bay and flex space and looser big-box vacancy above 10% means listings should be priced by building-size cohort, not against a single blended market number.

LEASING

Lee & Associates DFW placed a tenant in a 35,000 SF industrial lease at 566 N Beach St in Fort Worth, closing June 19 [14]. Celestica's Richardson campus expansion (Section 1) is the week's largest confirmed leasing commitment [1][2][3].

ANALYST INFERENCE Small-bay Fort Worth product continues to move even as headline vacancy sits above the metro average, consistent with the fundamentals split above.

INVESTMENT SALES AND CAPITAL

Zenith Industrial Outdoor Storage closed a three-property, roughly 30-acre IOS portfolio spanning Duncanville and Blue Mound (plus a Tulsa asset), five buildings and more than 105,000 SF of improvements; no price disclosed. Reported June 23, 2026 [16]. Bisnow's June 29 DFW Deal Sheet headlined an Ares acquisition of an industrial portfolio in an unnamed premier corridor of DFW; the underlying article could not be independently confirmed and the address, size, and price remain unverified [15]. CanTex Capital's April sale of a majority interest in its 20-asset, 1.3M SF shallow-bay portfolio to Partners Group and an undisclosed New York investor remains relevant background: CanTex retained a minority stake and disclosed more than $460M in 2025 Class B industrial dispositions across Texas [17].

ANALYST INFERENCE Zenith's back-to-back DFW IOS buys and CanTex's disposition cadence both point to institutional capital treating DFW outdoor storage and shallow-bay product as a distinct, actively traded asset class rather than a niche.

DATA CENTER AND POWER

DataBank's $1.45B financing close (Section 1) is the week's anchor data-center capital event [4][5][6]. Celestica separately committed to a data-center-equipment manufacturing campus at Hillwood's AllianceTexas exceeding 1M SF and roughly 1,700 jobs; reported investment figures conflict between sources ($876M per Bisnow versus $300M per CoStar) and should be confirmed before citing a specific number [18][45]. ERCOT and Oncor's Southern DFW Load Interconnection project remains the standing infrastructure story behind this demand, with Oncor projecting more than 4 GW of load growth across greater DFW [46].

ANALYST INFERENCE Financing at this scale for a single South Dallas County campus, alongside ERCOT's new large-load batch-review process, confirms power availability, not capital, is now the binding constraint on new DFW data-center and heavy-power industrial sites.

LAND AND ENTITLEMENT

Fort Worth's City Council is weighing up to $4.5M in incentives over 10 years for Mach Industries, a defense-tech drone manufacturer, to occupy Hillwood's 310,036 SF Alliance Gateway 34 building in exchange for a $74M investment and at least 1,000 jobs; a council vote is set for August 10 [19][20][21]. Hillwood announced Alliance Westport 16, a 1,214,969 SF Class A spec building (completion targeted July 2027), on top of two smaller spec buildings (268,623 SF and 501,235 SF) already under construction, bringing its AllianceTexas pipeline to roughly 8.2M SF under construction or in design [22][23]. In Fort Worth, council unanimously approved case ZC-25-208 on April 28, unifying zoning at 8.47 acres at 5051 South Freeway to Light Industrial [24]. The Black Mountain Power rezoning near Forest Hill and Kennedale (450-plus acres for a proposed $10B data center campus) still has an 80-acre council vote pending after resident pushback [25][26].

ANALYST INFERENCE Hillwood's 8.2M SF spec pipeline and the pending Mach Industries lease show AllianceTexas absorbing new supply about as fast as it delivers it, which should keep asking rents firm in that corridor even as citywide big-box vacancy sits above 10%.

SECTION 4 — BROADER DFW CRE

Office, multifamily, and sports items with full deal detail appear as rows in the Section 3 table above and are not repeated here.

OFFICE

Dallas Council approved the $18.5M incentive tied to Morgan Stanley's proposed $1.3B Uptown tower [7][8][9]. Hillwood Urban is evaluating a sale, refinance, recapitalization, or new partner for Victory Commons One (364,428 SF; 93% leased) [28][29], while Stonelake secured construction financing for a 17-story spec tower at 2626 McKinney [30].

ANALYST INFERENCE Uptown is bifurcating in real time: fresh capital is funding new trophy supply and an incentive-backed HQ commitment while an existing trophy owner tests the market.

MULTIFAMILY

Blackstone reportedly faces foreclosure on a $90M Ares loan tied to the 490-unit 75 West Apartments in North Dallas [31]; June's Texas CRE foreclosure-flagged total reportedly reached $1.3B, concentrated in multifamily and hospitality [32].

ANALYST INFERENCE A high-profile borrower facing foreclosure is a marker that North Dallas Class B multifamily distress extends beyond smaller private owners.

RETAIL / HOSPITALITY

No material retail development surfaced in the coverage window. North Texas hotels reportedly saw a late-June World Cup-related demand surge, but exact figures were not independently confirmed [13][43].

SPORTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Atletico Dallas acquired Dallas Trinity FC on June 30. The unified ownership group will play at the Cotton Bowl while it searches for a permanent stadium and training-facility site after Garland declined the earlier proposal [33].

ANALYST INFERENCE A dual-club group actively searching for a stadium site is a land story worth tracking into the fall, though no specific site has been named.

SECTION 5 — CAPITAL MARKETS DASHBOARD

10-YEAR TREASURY

4.47%

July 2 intraday range 4.46% to 4.50%; a tight week-over-week band supports stable cap-rate spreads [34][35].

SHORT END

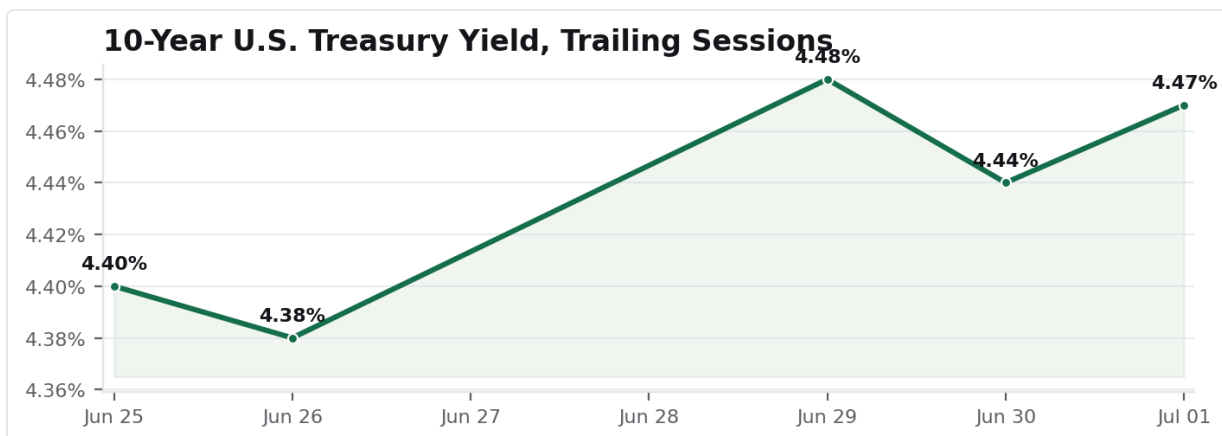

2Y 4.17%

SOFR 3.68% (June 30); Fed funds 3.50% to 3.75% after the June 17 hold [36][37][38].

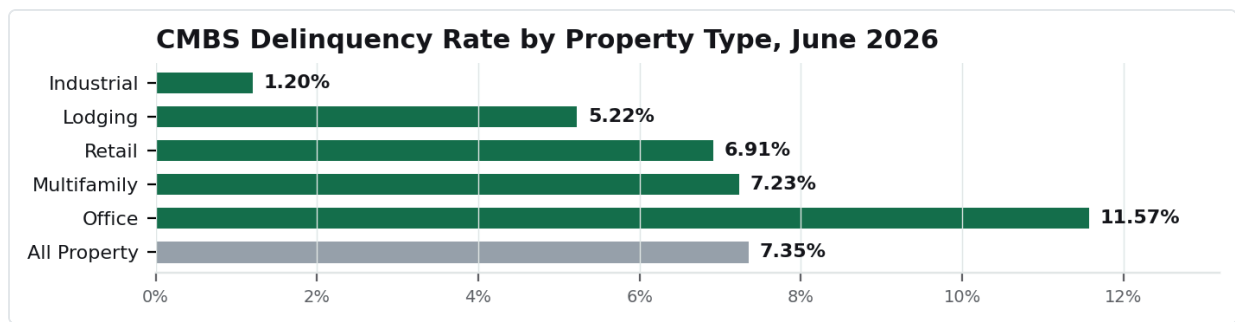

CMBS INDUSTRIAL

1.20%

Cleanest property type in June; office 11.57%, all-property 7.35% [40].

Five most recent confirmed session closes; July 2 intraday 4.46% to 4.50%. Secondary-sourced from Advisor Perspectives and CNBC quote data; direct FRED and Treasury pulls were blocked [34][35].

Trepp data as reported by Connect CRE [40].

Verified fact. The 2-year Treasury stood at 4.17% to 4.18% as of July 1; SOFR printed 3.68% June 30; the Fed target range remains 3.50% to 3.75%, with the July 28 to 29 meeting carrying no new SEP [36][37][38][39].

CRE TRANSLATION — ANALYST INFERENCE Floating-rate industrial construction and bridge debt continues to price off a stable SOFR base; a near-flat curve does little to change proceeds on fixed or floating executions this week.

Verified fact. Overall CMBS delinquency fell to 7.35% in June, but retail and multifamily rose. Industrial improved to 1.20% while office worsened to 11.57%, the highest sector rate [40].

CRE TRANSLATION — ANALYST INFERENCE The headline improvement masks sector divergence. DFW industrial sponsors remain the best-positioned borrowers in refinance and extension conversations.

Verified fact. Kevin Warsh was confirmed as Fed Chair in May; June ADP private payrolls rose 98,000, below consensus. The July 2 BLS report had not been released when this brief was compiled [41][42].

CRE TRANSLATION — ANALYST INFERENCE Underwrite both continued-hold and surprise-cut rate paths into the July FOMC rather than assuming the June hold persists through year-end.

Verified fact. The April 2026 Senior Loan Officer Opinion Survey showed broadly unchanged CRE lending standards and weaker-to-unchanged loan demand [47].

CRE TRANSLATION — ANALYST INFERENCE Banks are not tightening materially further but are not meaningfully easing either; debt funds and life companies remain central to construction and bridge executions.

SECTION 6 — NATIONAL CRE SIGNALS WITH DFW READ-THROUGH

PROLOGIS / SEGRO

Prologis made an indicative all-share proposal June 16 to acquire Segro at roughly 12.6 billion pounds; Segro rejected it June 23. A firm-offer-or-walk-away deadline is July 22 [48][49][50].

DFW read-through. ANALYST INFERENCE Continued institutional conviction in scaled industrial portfolios is supportive for DFW owners evaluating exit timing.

INDUSTRIAL CREDIT

Industrial CMBS delinquency is 1.20% versus 11.57% for office, confirming collateral-quality divergence even as the headline rate fell [40].

DFW read-through. ANALYST INFERENCE DFW industrial borrowers should retain comparatively better lender appetite and refinance proceeds.

MSCI CAPITAL RECOVERY

MSCI reported U.S. CRE investment volume of $110.7B in Q1 2026, up 18% y/y, with industrial leading at $31B, up 27% y/y [44].

DFW read-through. ANALYST INFERENCE Record DFW Q1 leasing and absorption make the market a credible recipient of reallocating industrial capital.

FED TRANSITION

New Fed leadership and the June 17 hold at 3.50% to 3.75% add rate-path uncertainty into the July 28 to 29 FOMC [38][41].

DFW read-through. ANALYST INFERENCE Tighten assumptions on floating-rate acquisition debt and 2026 to 2027 refinance timing.

SECTION 7 — ORIGINATION & OWNER RADAR

OPPORTUNITY	ASSET / OWNER / COMPANY	EVIDENCE + WHY IT MAY MATTER	SUGGESTED BROKER QUESTION	CONFIDENCE
Entitlement-driven disposition signal	5051 South Freeway, Fort Worth (Series C LLC / Diamond Creek)	Fort Worth Council unanimously approved ZC-25-208, unifying Light Industrial zoning, April 28, 2026 [24]. Owners often unify split zoning before marketing or beginning development.	Now that the site carries unified Light Industrial zoning, is there interest in a land sale, ground lease, or build-to-suit partner?	Medium
Partial exit and further-disposition signal	CanTex Capital, 20-asset / 1.3M SF shallow-bay portfolio	April 6 release confirms a majority-interest sale; CanTex retained a minority stake and disclosed $460M-plus in 2025 Class B Texas dispositions [17]. This is a live conversation for the rest of its DFW book.	Is the retained minority stake a hold-to-recap position, or are other DFW shallow-bay assets planned for exit?	Early Signal
Large-parcel entitlement with reuse optionality	Black Mountain Power, 450-plus acres, Forest Hill / Kennedale	Ag-to-Light-Industrial rezoning approved for a proposed $10B data center; an additional 80-acre request is pending [25][26]. If campus scope changes, entitled acreage could fit conventional industrial use.	Is any portion of the entitled acreage available for a conventional industrial or logistics user if campus phasing changes?	Early Signal

SECTION 8 — CONVERSATION AMMO

- Zenith's back-to-back DFW IOS buys in Duncanville and Blue Mound show outdoor-storage pricing remains tight enough to keep institutional capital active in a product many lenders still treat as opportunistic [16].
- Industrial is the cleanest CMBS credit at 1.20% delinquency versus 11.57% for office, a spread worth raising with lenders assessing mixed-use or office-adjacent industrial collateral [40].
- Morgan Stanley's $18.5M incentive vote for a 709,000 SF Uptown tower is a public comp for AllianceTexas or South Fort Worth industrial users seeking an economic-development agreement [7][8][9].

SECTION 9 — WHAT TO WATCH NEXT

STATUS	DATE	CATALYST	CONSEQUENCE TO MONITOR
CLOSED	July 2, 2026	Official June nonfarm payrolls report, released this morning after compilation.	A weak print raises the odds of a more dovish Fed pivot; a strong print reinforces the hawkish June dot plot [42].
CARRY	July 17, 2026	Deadline for PUC and ERCOT to submit an implementation proposal on the directive that data centers fully fund their own grid infrastructure costs.	The cost-allocation mechanism adopted will directly affect underwriting for every DFW data-center land deal in diligence [51].
CARRY	Mid-to-late July 2026	Q2 2026 DFW industrial market reports from CBRE, JLL, Cushman & Wakefield, Newmark, and Colliers are expected to publish.	These will be the first hard read on whether Q1's record leasing volume translated into a vacancy decline, and will reset the comp set this brief has been citing from Q1 data.
NEW	July 22, 2026	Prologis deadline to announce a firm Segro bid or walk away.	A completed deal could accelerate logistics-portfolio consolidation appetite reaching DFW sellers [48][49][50].
NEW	July 28 to 29, 2026	FOMC meeting, the second under Chair Warsh.	Any shift from the June 17 hold directly reprices DFW industrial cap rates and refinancing proceeds [38][39].
NEW	August 10, 2026	Fort Worth Council vote on the $4.5M Mach Industries incentive package.	Approval would fill 310,036 SF at Alliance Gateway 34 and set a fresh incentive-per-job comp [19][20][21].

THE MOVE TODAY

Pull comparable South Freeway corridor industrial land trades within three miles of 5051 South Freeway and build a per-acre comp sheet before outreach to Series C LLC / Diamond Creek Investments on its newly unified 8.47-acre Light Industrial site.

Coverage: July 1, 2026, 7:00 AM CT to July 2, 2026, 8:00 AM CT (carried items dated back to June 15 where flagged). Compiled July 2, 2026. Items tagged "Analyst Inference" are interpretive, not factual statements. Full URLs for every numbered source are preserved in the day's data file and the master deal log in the repository. The standard 24-to-72-hour window was applied; items first covered between June 15 and July 1 appear with Update or Carry status rather than being re-reported as new. In the original production run, direct fetches to FRED, Treasury, Federal Reserve pages, Bisnow, The Real Deal, CoStar, CBRE, Colliers, and Connect CRE returned HTTP 403; facts attributed to those domains were confirmed through search-result synthesis and cross-checked where possible. The Ares deal-sheet item is headline-only and unverified. The Celestica AllianceTexas investment figure conflicts between sources and is flagged. The June 2026 BLS employment report due July 2 at 8:30 AM ET was not reflected at compilation and should be checked before distribution if precision is required.
